

Position for an internship available

GIZ Thailand/Bangkok, the project ASEAN Sustainable Agrifood Systems (ASEAN SAS) is looking for an

Intern for communications and related activities

Field of activity

ASEAN Sustainable Agrifood Systems (ASEAN SAS) project is one of the two modules under the ASEAN-German Programme on Response to Climate Change: Agriculture, Forestry and Related Sectors focusing on the promotion of sustainable agricultural production. The project supports ASEAN Member States to improve the agrifood sector along entire value chains in the rice, vegetable, and fruit. This includes factors such as further processing and market linkages for small farming households. The project emphasises on the topics of biological control agents, soil and nutrient management, and farm economics and adopts a market-oriented approach which is put into practice through several pilot measures. The key success factor is the cooperation with the private sector, e.g. with food industry companies. This orientation on the value chains ensures the economical sustainability of the approaches used. (<http://www.asean-agrifood.org>)
